

Dallas 10.01.2009

Spelling Bee' hit Dallas stages

And speaking of spelling (wow, we should get paid extra for segues like that), The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee at Theatre Three is super gay and super H-I-L-A-R-I-O-U-S.

Local favorite Paul J. Williams brings his scathing wit and perfect comedic timing to his role as the Bee's word enunciator and definition provider. And his ability to ad lib is a great fit for this show.

The musical numbers are funny, edgy and filled with delightfully obscure words (if you're nerdy about vocabulary like we are). And we love any musical that devotes an entire song-and-dance tribute to erections (something we still insist is sorely missing from My Fair Lady).

So you think you can spell? Sign up in the lobby when you arrive and you could be called on-stage for one of four coveted audience-participation spots in the actual show. Spell correctly and extend your fifteen minutes of fame all the way to intermission. Don't, and go back to your seat with a juice box and a deep sense of failure. Either way, it's really fun for the rest of us.

"One Night Stand Up" on LOGO

Upcoming Showings: October 25, November 3 & November 6

View online at www.logoonline.com

©2009 Gay List Daily.